Frequently Asked Production Questions

Do I need a permit?

Yes, the State of Indiana and most local jurisdictions do require a permit to film. You'll find Indiana to be extremely low-hassle, with few permits required. In some cases, you'll need to do some paperwork to close streets and roads. But for the most part, you won't need to jump through a lot of hoops. Once you've identified your locations, check with the Film office, and we'll help with road closings and other needs you may have.

What are Indiana's child labor laws?

The Indiana Child Labor Board does not require a work permit for those under the age of 16, if the following conditions are met:

The child or teenager, who is under 16, must be accompanied by parent or guardian to all rehearsals and performances. If the child or teenager is taken out of school, the school system must be notified and permission must be granted by the school. If the child or teenager will not be attending school for two days or more, an alternate form of education must be provided (e.g., tutor or teacher on the set). Rehearsals and performances cannot hinder the child or teenager's health, welfare or morals. Areas of concern include number of hours worked in one day, temperature in the working area, scheduled rest periods, and proper meals. Children cannot appear in nightclubs or locations where alcohol is served.

Go here to read Indiana's complete child labor statute:

<http://www.in.gov/legislative/ic/code/title20/ar33/ch3.html>

All other questions can be forwarded to the Indiana Child Labor Board at 317/232-2675 or 888/TEENWORK (888/833-6967).

Is Indiana a Right to Work state?

Indiana welcomes both union and non-union projects. It's not a Right To Work state. Our system is called Employment at Will. Simply put, if you have a union agreement, you must abide by it. However, if you have no agreement, you are not obligated to hire union personnel.

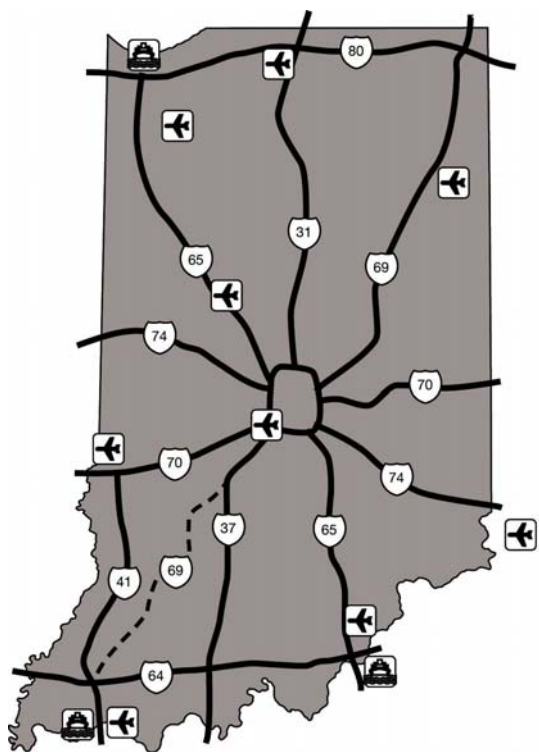

Go here to read Indiana's complete Employment at Will statute:
<http://www.in.gov/legislative/ic/code/title22/ar2/ch2.html>

For more information, call the Indiana Department of Labor at 317/232-2673.

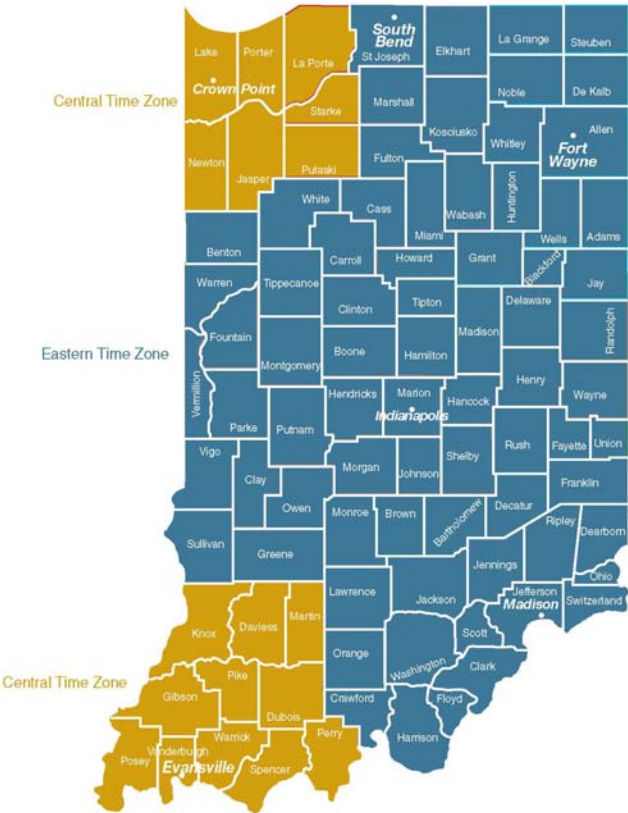

Indiana's Climate

We have four distinct seasons – each offers unique visual opportunities. Spring green begins in late March to early April, and the season tends to be warm, particularly in April and May. Summers are hot and humid, autumn is beautifully colorful and warm, and winters are relatively mild with some snow, generally in January and early February. Counting 300 miles from the northern border to the southern border of the state, there are certainly variations to be expected within these general seasonal trends.
